Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If the period for reply specified above is less than thirty (30) days, a reply within the statutory minimum of thirty (30) days will be considered timely.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

DETAILED ACTION

1. The following is a first office action upon examination of application number 09/821,685.

Claim 1 is pending and has been examined on the merits discussed below.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC §101

2. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

The basis of this rejection is set forth in a two-prong test of:

- (1) whether the invention is within the technological arts; and
- (2) whether the invention produces a useful, concrete, and tangible result.

For a claimed invention to be statutory, the claimed invention must be within the technological arts. Mere ideas in the abstract (i.e., abstract idea, law of nature, natural phenomena) that do not apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts fail to promote the "progress of science and the useful arts" (i.e., the physical sciences as opposed to social sciences, for example) and therefore are found to be non-statutory subject matter. For a process claim to pass muster, the recited process must somehow apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts. In the present case, claim 1 only recites an abstract idea. The recited steps of merely receiving service requests, assigning service providers to the requests and receiving service reports from the service providers does not apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts since all of the recited steps can be performed in the mind of the user or by use of a pencil and paper. These steps only constitute an idea of how to assign service providers and collect service reports.

Art Unit: 3623

Additionally, for a claimed invention to be statutory, the claimed invention must produce a useful, concrete, and tangible result. In the present case, the claimed invention produces a record of service performed (i.e., concrete, useful and tangible).

Although the recited process produces a useful, concrete, and tangible result, since the claimed invention, as a whole, is not within the technological arts as explained above, claim 1 is deemed to be directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Berman et al, US 5,995,939.

As per claim 1, Berman et al teaches receiving service requests (column 3, lines 40-48); assigning one of a plurality of service providers to each of the service requests (column 4, lines 3-24 – the appropriate service is provider is emailed regarding the service request); for each assigned service provider, notifying the assigned service provider of each service request assigned to the service provider (column 4, lines 3-24 – the appropriate service is provider is emailed regarding the service request); and from each assigned service provider, receiving a service report describing services performed in response to each service request assigned to the service provider (column 4, lines 25-32 – the service provider processes the service request and a fulfilled service request message is emailed back to the original requestor to indicate completion). Berman et al does not explicitly teach the service requests pertaining to private onsite wastewater treatment systems; however, these differences are only found in the non-functional descriptive material and are not functionally involved in the steps recited nor do they alter the recited structural elements. The recited method steps would be performed the same regardless of the specific data. Further, the structural elements remain the same regardless of the specific data. Thus, this descriptive material will not distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art in terms of patentability, see In re Gulack, 703 F.2d 1381, 1385, 217 USPQ 401, 404 (Fed. Cir. 1983); In re Lowry, 32 F.3d 1579, 32 USPQ2d 1031 (Fed. Cir. 1994); MPEP § 2106.

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Wayne et al - US 5,006,983 – service allocation system

Sisley et al – US 5,467,268 – method for resource assignment and scheduling

Babayev et al – US 5,615,121 – system and method for scheduling service providers to perform customer service requests

Bedeski et al – US 6,516,055 – interface for trouble report input system and trouble report resolution

Nawathe et al – US 5647986 – apparatus and process for distributed treatment of wastewater
